

WOMAN SHOT BY CHARLES W. RIGDON

MRS. AMY YOUNG.

NO GOLDEN-HAIRED BOY
WAS SON OF MRS. YOUNG

Was Once Troubled by Illness of Some Child, Believed to Be Brother.

Mrs. Alexander Young, who was shot by Charles W. Rigdon in Chicago, has carefully covered up all track of any "golden-haired little boy" she may have left in Washington.

In fact, persons who knew Mrs. Young, and who were employed by her, declared today that she never had a little boy, with or without golden hair, in Washington. They say they would have been sure to have heard her speak of him, if she had ever had a son.

At one time before she left Washington, a year ago last spring, Mrs. Young was anxious because of the illness of a little boy, and went every day to see him, it was said at the time. This little boy is supposed to have been her brother, who was about twelve years old at the time.

It was learned today that when Mrs. Young left the house 1812 Corcoran street after the window-smashing episode, in which Rigdon played the principal part, she went to the Graton Hotel and made that her headquarters for several weeks in fact, until she finally left Washington for good.

I predicted before Mrs. Young left Washington that Mr. Rigdon would shoot her some day, said a man who was employed both by Mr. Rigdon and by Mrs. Young while they were here. "Mr. Rigdon used to become enraged at the slightest thing Mrs. Young would put upon him. He was very jealous of her, too."

Mrs. Young had two younger sisters, described as pretty girls. They both attended the Visitation convent on Connecticut avenue and lived there during the school year, but later went to live on R street near 15th street. These younger sisters were about sixteen and nineteen years of age.

COL. ALVIN L. REED DEAD;
PROMINENT RAILROAD MAN

Forty-Two Years Connected With Atlantic Coast Line and Its Agent in Washington.

Col. Alvin L. Reed died at his residence, 1702 R street, yesterday afternoon. His funeral will be held at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. The interment will be at Glenwood cemetery, with Masonic rites conducted by Dawson Lodge, No. 1.

Col. Reed was a native of this city, son of the late David C. Reed, for many years a leading merchant tailor near 6th and Pennsylvania streets. His mother was a Landale, one of the oldest families of this section.

Born on G street opposite Judiciary Square, November 30, 1845, he attended the public school at 5th and F streets named Dr. John Watkins and T. M. Wilson, and later Georgetown College. He afterward served as mounted messenger under Gen. D. H. Rucker in the quartermaster's service.

At the close of the civil war he became connected with the Atlantic coast line, to which he gave forty-two years' service. As agent in charge he was well known to the traveling public.

Col. Reed had been ill for about two years, but did not take to his bed until two weeks ago. He had one daughter, Miss Nellie Marie Reed, C. P. Dowdon is a stepson.

CENTRAL CLUB FORMED.

Organization of Colored Men Who Favor Taft Administration.

A number of colored men met at 727 7th street southeast yesterday evening to discuss the advisability of forming an administration republican club as a central organization to participate in the fall campaign and to support republican candidates for Congress.

It was decided to hold a mass meeting at the same place next Tuesday night, when permanent organization will be formed. The following temporary committee to plan for the next meeting was named: James W. Poe, Thomas Edward Brown, Robert Quander, Charles L. Billings, Horace Brown, James Williams, Albert Taylor, Richard Gasaway, George Butler, Charles Eckels, Alexander Beacham, Frank Diggs and Murray Barnes.

It was decided that temporary residents who vote in any state are to be admitted to membership, and that a general committee will be formed to arrange for the organization of auxiliary clubs in all parts of the District.

Stranded Vessel Undamaged.
KINGSTON, Jamaica, July 22.—The Hamburg-American line steamer Schwarzburg was refloated from her stranded position off Port Royal last night after her cargo of iron rails and coal had been jettisoned. Apparently the vessel is undamaged. She is bound for the Island of Curacao.

STRANGE BEAST COMING TO WASHINGTON'S ZOO

Solenodon Captured in San Domingo Is Ancestor of the Rat Family.

If any one in Washington has lost a solenodon he can assuage his grief within the next few days by going out to the Zoo and seeing one alive. It will not be the one he lost, but it will be one of the few in captivity anywhere in the world and it ought to bring back pleasant memories to the bereaved owner.

The new animal is to be shipped from New York some time today. It is the gift of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Adams of the Bureau of American Republics, who have brought back five specimens from the mountains of Santo Domingo. They are so rare that the officials of the Zoo do not know exactly what they live on, but they can have anything they want from peanuts to ice cream, even if there has to be an urgent deficiency bill presented to Congress to pay for it.

The little beast is a closer approach in general appearance to some of the extinct animals of bygone ages than it is to any present day mammals. It is a member of the hedgehog family and a first cousin to a shrew.

Paris Has a Cousin.
So far as is known, there is none of the Santo Domingo variety in captivity anywhere. There is none even in the Regent's Park Zoo in London, and the nearest approach to it is a closely allied animal from Madagascar in the Jardin des Plantes in Paris.

The out-of-date mammal is about the size of a rabbit, has a long nose like a little anteater and heavy claws on the front feet for digging. Those that have been brought back by Mr. Adams have been fed on hard-boiled eggs and similar delicacies. But if it wants ants or grubs the biological survey will be called into consultation and it will be seen whether the particular brand of insect it affects cannot be raised in this latitude.

Mr. Adams is editor of the bulletin of the International Bureau of American Republics. His wife, Mrs. Harriet Chalmers Adams, is a lecturer of note on South America, Panama and the West Indies. She is of scientific attainments and in a horseback journey of fifteen days through the wilds of Santo Domingo she was of great assistance to her husband in his quest for specimens of the solenodon, which is known to the Santo Domingans as a simiput.

"While it was known that the solenodon was to be found in Santo Domingo," said Mrs. Adams, "the only specimen obtained in the fifty years was that caught by A. Hyatt Verrill, the naturalist, many years ago. The animal died before Mr. Verrill was able to photograph it, but he sketched it later. When we were touring Santo Domingo we resolved to invade the haunts of the ancestor of the present family. For fifteen days of hard riding through the wildest country in the world we succeeded in obtaining five excellent specimens."

The specimens are apparently in the best of health. They are fed nightly on eggs, chopped birds, cabbage and vegetables. The solenodon is a genus of rare insectivorous mammals, and those obtained by Mr. and Mrs. Adams are nearly two feet long. The snout is four inches long and moves about much like the trunk of an elephant. The animal has small eyes, large ears, hard fur and scaly tail. When at home it hides in hollow trees, emerging only at night.
